Once I have the.torrent file open in the IDE, I install bittorrent, and open the.torrent file in the BitTorrent app. I have chosen it as the default app, and it does the job of opening up the torrent on my phone.

Absence of Alpha-Glucosidase I in Type 2 Diabetes Affects the Feedback Effect of Insulin on Glucagon Secretion. Mice with a disrupted alpha-glucosidase I gene (AGII knockout (AGII KO)) exhibit an unsuppressed hyperglucagonemia and hyperglycemia in the presence of normal circulating insulin levels. In the current study, we examined the glucose- and glucose-lowering-dependent regulation of alpha- and beta-cell function to determine if insulin regulates glucagon secretion differently in AGII KO mice. We examined the short-term (5 min) and prolonged (30-min) effects of hyperglycemia and hyperinsulinemia on alpha- and beta-cell function. In 5- and 30-min hyperglycemic clamps, blood glucose concentrations were similar in AGII KO and WT mice. The increase in alpha- and beta-cell function in response to hyperglycemia in WT was absent in AGII KO mice. Insulin feedback on alpha- and beta-cell function was impaired, because increased secretion of alpha- and beta-cells in response to hyperinsulinemia was blunted in AGII KO mice. However, insulin released in response to a lower glucose infusion rate was similar between AGII KO and WT mice. Although insulin-dependent inhibition of glucagon secretion is impaired in AGII KO mice, it is unlikely that increased alpha-cell responsiveness is the primary cause of increased glucagon secretion.

Drones, both for commercial and personal use, are taking off and becoming more accessible. In the future they will likely be used in wide-spread commercial, military, and recreational applications. With an ever-increasing number of unmanned aerial vehicles (UAVs) in use, the possibility of collisions occurring between UAVs and other aircraft increases. These unmanned aerial vehicles need to be controlled in a safe and efficient manner to avoid collisions with other aircraft. One method

NEW YORK (CNN) -- Sometimes, young people reach a crossroad in their lives and have to think about what they want to be when they grow up. Elements of the pop culture industry, including go-go music, hula hoops and pajamas, were not only adopted by people of every age, but they also played important roles in shaping and moving society forward. Check out the history of three notable "young people" throughout pop culture.

Beatles The age: Starting at 7 Pop: Yes Cultural influence: The Beatles, man, what can we say? This band -- along with, of course, the man named John -- has had an undeniable impact on modern society. We'll never forget the tales of John, Paul, George and Ringo dating the girls, dropping acid, clapping back at fans and washing your car for a few bucks. They revolutionized popular culture. As a young man growing up in the late '60s and early '70s, I thought of the Beatles as my best friends. I learned so much from them and listened to them on the radio when I was trying to grow up. The Beatles also taught us, very young, the value of a band dynamic. Before the Beatles, music was separated by gender. Women liked to listen to the Rolling Stones or the Beach Boys, and men listened to the Animals or the Stones. The Beatles broke all of that. They said we all should listen to the same songs. All the media you see today is full of images of the Beatles -- from their music videos to their images on posters and record covers -- and it's impossible for a kid to not be influenced by them.

Hula hoop The age: 3 Pop: Yes Cultural influence: The hula hoop was invented for a kid named Kai Nelson, who calls himself the "Father of Hula Hooping." Nelson is also credited with inventing the crash pad (the exact origins of which we are still unclear) and developing the first "wheelie" bike.
